"Republican Officials Know Your Needs" Banquet Groun Is Told

Joseph L. McGinnies, Speaker of Assembly, Addresses enthusiastic Gathering of Young Republican Clubs at Bath—District Attorney Pratt Asserts It is Up to Us to See That Impending "Changes Do Not Swallow Us".

"Your up-state Republican officials know your needs and necessities and they are in sympathy with you. There is no reason why you should turn over the government to our Democratic friends", declared Joseph L. McGinnies, of Chautauqua County, speaker of the New York State Assembly, before an enthusiastic dinner meeting of Steuben County Young Republican clubs in the Masonic Temple banquet hall in Bath last Thursday evening.

This meeting was called to order at about 7:30 o'clock by Grattan Barber, president of the Steuben County organization. Mr. Barber introductd Dr. Bachman, chairman of the Republican County Committee, who emphasized that the way to win the coming election was to get out the vote.

Earl S. Warner, state senator from this district, was next introduced and spoke in part as follows: "Your chairman is to be congratulated that he could bring about a gathering such as this . . . It is an indication not alone of a return to normalcy in the Republican party . . . it indicates that we have in the Republican party a return to militancy.

"A year ago we were in the midst of the depression . . . On Sunday last we received a confession from the President. He said that the problems confronting him had been in the making for twenty years. A year ago, however, we were told that all the ills of our time were due to mismanagement and gross inefficiency of the party in power . . . It is important to realize that within a few months after assuming affairs, the President considers that something other than Republican mismanagement has been instrumental in bringing about the depression.

"There is one message I would leave with this Republican party gathering. For years past we have been too prone to fall for the brandishments of the Democrats. How often the appeal of the Democrats, when seeking office, has been "give us a complimentary vote!" Now we see them in power and boldly stating that hereafter all offices shall be filled only by Democrats.

"Let us again all return to the fold and set our hand to the helm to the

The present Tuscarora supervisor and aspirant for re-election was born in the town of Woodhull on March 31, 1877. His father was Elias Young and his mother, Hannah Putnam Young. He was educated in the rural schools of Woodhull. About two years after leaving school he purchased a farm in Woodhull and continued to reside in that township until the year 1900 when he acquired a farm in Tuscarora.

In 1914 Mr. Young was elected justice of the peace in Tuscarora, an office which he resigned in 1916 to become supervisor. From 1918 to 1923 he was in charge of county road construction in the town of Tuscarora and at intervals in other sections to which he was assigned by the county superintendent of highways. In 1930 he was again elected justice of the peace, an office which for the second time he shortly thereafter relinquished to again become supervisor in 1931.

Frank R. Aulls Candidate In Campbell

Former County Treasurer—Distinguished Business Career—Established First Light and Power Plant in Section — Instrumental in Effecting Revaluation of Public Utilities Properties.

Frank R. Aulls is a candidate on the Republican ticket for re-election as supervisor of the town of Campbell. Mr. Aulls, who preceded Miss Clara Smith in the office of county treasurer, has been supervisor for four years and also served several terms as supervisor previous to his tenure in the treasurership.

Mr. Aulls was born in Bradford Township, near Keuka Lake, in 1878. He was the son of Frank and Elizabeth Rowlett Aulls. After completing the public school in Bradford he attended the Haverling High School in Bath. In 1900 he purchased the Campbell Roller Mills which he continued to own and operate for a period of 25 years. In 1921 he built an electric light plant which brought the first electric light and power to the villages of Campbell and Savona.. In 1924 he sold the light and power plant to the Associated Gas and Light Company but continued to operate the plant for one year after relinquishing the ownership. The first bus line from Hammondsport to Corning was established by Mr. Aulls in 1914. He continued to operate the line for two years thereafter.

Forrest J. Loper Seeks Third Term In Town of Jasper

Unopposed in Coming Election — Prominent in Moves to Bring About Tax Reduction—Town in Excellent Financial Condition.

Forrest J. Loper, for the past four years Supervisor of the town of Jasper, is a candidate for re-election to a third term. Mr. Loper has served the township with credit and distinction and his record of service is looked upon as one of the most outstanding in the history of the township. He is unopposed in the present campaign although the Democratic party has entered candidates for all othetr township offices.

Mr. Loper was born in the town of Woodhull on July 21, 1888, the son of J. Alva Loper and Mary Stroud Loper. His early educational training was obtained in the district school, later in the Woodhull High School. He took up farming early in life and has been engaged in this ocupation continously ever since. In 1912 he was married to Miss Margaret Towsley of Jasper. They resided on the Towsley homestead for eight years, later in 1919 they purchased the Van Orsdale farm, where they now live, still operating the home farm. They have a son, now a student in the Jasper High School.

Before his election as supervisor, Mr. Loper served for six years as superintendent of highways in the town of Jasper. In 1929, he was elevated to the office of supervisor and since that time his name has been constantly associated with efforts to reduce the cost of county and town government and to bring about a lessening of the taxation burden.

As a member of the County Building Committee, Mr. Loper was prominent during his initial term as supervisor in opposing preliminary plans of the State Prison Commission to impose an expense of $350,000 upon the county by compelling the erection of the new jail according to certain stated specifications outlined by the state authorities. The County Building Committee, at that time made up of Guy Daniel, Fred J. Brisco, Frank Crandall and Joseph F. Leahy, in addition to Mr. Loper, succeeded in persuading the Prison Commission to accept a building consisting of sixty-six rooms and cells at a cost of $188,000 instead of eighty-eight rooms and cells at the original figure of $350,000,

The Buildings committee was also instrumental at that time in bringing about the making of a new contract for electricity. Under the old contract, the county was paying eight cents per killowatt hour. The new contract provides for electricty at a price not to exceed two and one-half cents per kilowatt hour for the ensuing five years. This achievement alone meant a direct saving to the county of over three thousand dolars per year.

Mr. Loper was a pronounced opponent of the plan to erect a new state armory in the city of Corning, the site for which was to be purchased by the Board of Supervisors at a cost of $25,000. He also at first opposed the establishment of automobile license bureaus in Hornell and Corning at that time, the estimated cost of these bureaus seemed unquestionably high, although a plan was eventually worked out which made them practically selfsupporting.

As a citizen of Jasper and a member of the county board, Mr. Loper was active at an early stage in the movement to bring about a lowering of county salaries and expenses which eventually resulted in the creation of the Economy Committee and direct saving to the taxpayers of $165,000. As a taxpayer of his township, he was one of a group which formulated a petition, later signed by three hundred taxpayers of the town, requesting tax relief. The petition specifically asked first; that all salaries, or combination of salaries, amounting to $1,000.00 or more, be obtained by any elected or appointed official of Steuben County, whether paid a straight salary or per diem, be reduced. It further specified that a 10% reduction was not considered sufficient in all cases; second, it asked that allowances for mileage and expense accounts be reduced to a point where a profit could not be realized from these sources; third, that in case salaries of county officials are fixed by the legislature that the Steuben County Board of Supervisors recomend to that body a reduction of such salaries in keeping with the taxpayers' ability to pay; fourth, that all honorary and unnecessary appointees on the county payroll be dispensed with.

The petition referred to was presented to the Board of Supervisors early in 1932. Public opinion soon crystalized in favor of definite and tangible steps toward tax relief and similar petintions followed from other towns. The Economy Committee was then appointed by Chairman Goff and tax reduction soon became an actuality.

In addition to the County Building Committee, Mr. Loper has also been a member of Committee on Miscellaneous County Claims, Printing Accounts, Insurance and Supervisors' Checks, among other imprtant assignments. In township affairs, he has as supervisor continued his active interest in roads for the town, an objective foremost in his mind since his earlier service as superintendent of highways. At the present time twenty-eight percent of all roads in the township are macadam or cement. Twenty miles of county improved highways are within the township limits. Five miles of gravel road were built last year and the total for the present year will, when completed, exceed this amount.

LOPER -- -- ------ GAL 2

The financial condition of the town is reported as excellent, with no bills outstanding except a small balance due on the tractor purchased less than two years ago. During the past four years several important additions to the highway maintenance equipment have been made, including a shovel and three new trucks, all of which are now completely paid for. At the end of 1932 a balance of approximately $5,300 remained in the highway fund of the town. This additional sum has made it possible for the town to have considerable more highway equipment during the present year and has also been helpful in giving employment to many men of the township.

Mr. Loper feels that credit for the degree of successs that has been attained, in his town, in the way of highway improvement and better financial conditions should be shared by him with all other town officials, especially with Mr. Moore, the Republican candilate for a third term as superintendent of highways and the town board, as all have worked harmoniously and always for the interest of the taxpayers.

Other candidates on the Republican ticket for other town offices in Jasper are: town clerk, Fred W. Wood; superintendent of highways, Leo Moore; assessors, Sumner J. Woodward and O. Burr Marlatt; justices of the peace, Oscar Dennis and Cowles G. Whiting; collector, Wilbur Morris.

Democratic designees are as follows: supervisor, no nomination; town clerk, Belle Buller; superintendent of highways, J. E. House; assessors, Claude Butler and L. J. House; justices of the peace, Arthur Snyder and Cowles G. Whiting (endorsed); collector, Edward Davis.

Raymond Andrews, Ray Morton Roy Gotham, LaRue Symonds and Lloyd Brotzman motored to the Adirondack Mountains and spent from Thursday until Sunday hunting deer.

Roy Herrington Heads Woodhull Republican Slate

Graduate of Penn State—Instructor in Dairy Husbandry — Became Supervisor in 1927— Served on Economy Committee.

Confidence prevades the Republican camp in Woodhull where Roy W. Herrington is the party candidate for re-election as supervisor. Mr. Herrington's unquestioned popularity, together with the prestige he enjoys in county affairs and his record of service for Woodhull, assure his return to a seat on this Board, his supporters contend.

Mr. Herrington was born in the town where he now resides, on September 16, 1889. He was the son of Henry and Emma Walker Herrington. He attended the rural school and later the high school at Osceola, from which he was graduated in 1907. The following year he attended Elkland High School for special studies and then matriculated Penn State College. He was graduated from the latter institution in 1912 with the degree of Bachelor of Science.

For a time following his graduation from Penn State he remained at the college as instructor in dairy husbandry. He was then engaged in farming for a few years in Woodhull township. For the past seventeen years he has conducted a hardware store in Woodhull. He also owns two farms which he operates successfully.

Mr. Herrington was appointed supervisor in May, 1927, to serve out the unexpired term of the late Frank Wood. He was elected to to the office in the regular election of that fall and has served continuously since. He has served on many important committees: among them the State Highway Committee, of which he has been chairman for two years; the Agricultural Committee of which he has also been chairman; the Appropriations Committee and the Economy Committee.

The town of Woodhull has been completely out of debt for about four years and a good balance has been available in all funds at all times since.

Extensive road projects have been carried out and many improvements in both town and county systems have been effected.

Mr. Herrington was married in 1916 to Miss Bertha Brown of Woodhull. They have two children, Esther and Merle, both students in the Woodhull school.

Other candidates on the Republican ticket in Woodhull are:

Lindley Supervisor Defends Financial Record of County Board—Now Serving Fourth Term—Candidate for Re-election.

"I do know that the Steuben County Board of Supervisors has been run just as economically as it could", said John H. Pepper, supervisor from the town of Lindley, in a recent discussion of county affairs with an ADVERTISER representative. "All of our bonded indebtedness was caused by mandatory laws, dictated from Albany", he added.

Mr. Pepper is a candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket. His entry into politics was made a number of years ago when he was appointed justice of the peace to fill an unexpired term. He then served four years as town clerk and in 1925 was elected supervisor. He has held the office continuously ever since.

William C. Newcomb, supervisor in the town of Rathbone from 1927 to 1931 is coming down the comeback trail. His supporters are anticipating his return to the supervisor's chair by a comfortable margin in the election of Tuesday next.

Mr. Newcomb, who during his previous encumbency enjoyed the distinction of being the youngest member of the County Board was born in the town of Rathbone on April 19, 1900. He graduated from the Addison High School in 1919 and from the Agricultural College at Alfred University in 1923. While at Alfred he was a member of Theta Gamma fraternity and was prominent in all student activities.

In 1927, Mr. Newcomb was elected to the Board of Supervisors. During the four years in office, his name was associated with many important activities of the Board.

SUPERVISOR

Voters of the town of Addison can consider it a real privilege they have this fall of re-electing Walter M. Goff, Supervisor. This statement is strictly common sense, and any taxpayer who will take the time to think the matter through, must admit it is no exaggeration.

There are so many logical reasons Mr. Goff should be re-elected, it is impossible to enumerate them in the space of this editorial, yet a few facts are so pertinent, to omit saying them would be an injustice to the public who desires plain, unvarnished facts.

In the first place by years of self-effacing service Mr. Goff has proved he is a tried and true public servant. Absolutely honest and square as a die, there has never been one word of criticism uttered against the conduct of the town's affairs since they have been in his hands. The reason is not hard to find—Mr. Goff's conduct of office has been above criticism.

A few days ago a man, not a resident of the town of Addison, made the following remark, "The town of Addison could well afford to pay Mr. Goff a salary of $5,000, rather than lose him as Supervisor!" This seems like a pretty broad statement, but the speaker knew what he was talking about. "Take the matter of tax equalization", the man contiued, "Addison enjoys a very favorable equalization rate. If the town should lose 15 points, and that is an easy thing to do when an inexperienced man becomes Supervisor, anxious though he be to serve his constituents, the taxpayers would find themselves paying far larger taxes than now! This is not due to anything a new Supervisor would intentionally do. It is simply because he is not familiar with the office. A few years ago one town in the county changed from an experienced Supervisor to a new man, and the following year that town lost 21 points in tav equalization."

That is one thing for the taxpayers to consider when they vote next Tuesday. Another thing is this matter of a community doing what it can to help itself.

The town of Addison is in a unique position, in that it happens to be one of the smallest towns in the county, yet it is the biggest town in the county, measured by influence. Proportionately more Addison people are able to procure employment in county work, than any other town. Why is that? Because Mr. Goff has his home town firmly in mind at all times, and when jobs are available in county work, capable Addison people are first in line for jobs. The town of Addison has felt the depression far less during the past three years for the reason that many Addison people have secured employment in county work.

Changing Supervisors would do this one thing, if nothing else—it would take from the town of Addison the most important job in Steuben county affairs—the chairmanship of the Board of Supervisors. For, if the impossible should happen and the county board should change in complexion from Republican to Democrat, it would be impossible for the local Democratic aspirant to the office to become chairman. That office is only voted to a man with ripe years of valuable experience. Addison would be definitely out of the picture.

Voters are not going to lose sight of their own best interests at a time like this. They know that in time of rough weather it is best to cross a turbulent stream on a tested, safe bridge. Addison voters will go to the polls next Tuesday and return Mr. Goff to the office of Supervisor by a far larger majority than he received two years ago.

WOMAN WINS

Arizona elects Mrs. Isabella Greenway to accupy the position of lone Representative in Congress from that state. After this women should take a reef in their demands for "equality of sexes."

THE TWENTIETH AMENDMENT

Another constitutional amendment is in effect. In accordance therewith Congress will not assemble in December but the next session will begin January 3. President Roosevelt will go out of office on January 20, 1937, instead of in March, and the terms of Senators and representatives in that year will end at noon on January 3.

There will be no more lame ducks in Congress after the defeat of existing lawmakers at the polls, because of the ratification of the twentieth amendment on October 15.

A CLEAN SLATE

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the support of their party."

Steuben County people are preponderantly Republicans, thus should realize they are the one bulwark which can prevent absolute dictation of their governmental lives from Albany politicians who, in turn are subservient to the Tammany machine. But Steuben County folk do not have to be urged to give whole-hearted support to the Republican candidates who are their nominees—The high calibre of public servants selected for their endorsement will be sufficient reason for sweeping these Republican nominees into office by wide majorities.

Assemblyman Messer of the first district has served the people of his district too long to require them to be urged into re-electing him. Mr. Messer has been in Albany long enough to be of great worth to his constituents, and when they have come to him for assistance either individually or collectively he has ever been ready to lend a helping hand. His long service in the Assembly has earned the Assemblyman a position of importance in the lower House. He is a member of the powerful Ways and Means Committee, which committeeship brings Mr. Messer close to all impending legislation of importance. He will be returned by a large majority.

Assemblyman Otto of the second district, although he has not held office as long as his Steuben County colleague, has created a strong position for himself in the Assembly, and in the regard of the people of the county. His growing popularity is sure to result in Mr. Otto rolling up an even larger majority this year than he did last, keeping the representation from Steuben safely Republican, in spite of the attempts of Tammany to win the lower house this year.

The county ticket presented for the endorsement of Republican voters, has already received their hearty stamp of approval in the primaries. Fred C. Cornell waged a clean, impressive fight for Sheriff and has made a fine impression upon the voters. With Federal authority joining the states in a drive against the city gangsters, it is practically certain a large number of these outcasts from society will turn their activities loose in the rural districts. This makes it highly important that an intelligent, fearless, determined man become sheriff during the coming three years. Mr. Cornell impresses those who make his acquaintance, with being just that type of man. His election is now practically assured.

Clara Smith as County Treasurer had created such a strong reputation that no candidate entered the primary against her. She has filled the office so efficiently not a single dollar of the county's funds has been lost through a period of economic overturn, when every living individual has suffered loss of funds in one way and another. She earned re-election through being a capable, faithful servant.

Dr. Selleck has served the county well as coroner. He has been ready to respond to every call of emergency, and no doubt exists regarding the intentions of the voters to return him to office.

Dr. Whiting by a lifetime of unflinching service in the medical profession has won the respect and gratitude of the entire country-side where he has lived and ministered to the sick. His popularity will be shown by the majority of votes piled up for Dr. Whiting for Coroner November 7.

Altogether the Republican ticket state and county, is made up of a fine group of tested public servants and citizens of unquestioned ability. These candidates will be swept into office by an almost unanimous vote of their party augmented by hundreds of Democratic voters who will wish to see good government continued in Steuben County. For it is a clean slate.

A WORTHWHILE TARGET

The Addison High School Orchestra was signally honored last week by an invitation trip to two schools in Western New York. Leaving Addison by bus Thursday morning the young musicians played before an assembly in the Richburg Central High School, and later in the day presented their program before an audience of nearly 1,000 in the auditorium of the Bolivar school.

It is a fine commentary on the music department of Addison High, that invitations should be received by the orchestra from this small town to fill engagements in other and larger schools. Two things make this possible—good leadership and conscientious following. F. Arden Burt, director of music in the Addison school, an accomplshed musician himself, has furnished inspiring leadership to the group of boys and girls in his charge. The pupils in turn, have given unstintingly of their time and energy to perfect themselves as far as possible in the parts assigned. They have been glad to sacrifice hours which would have been spent less fruitfully on more or less idle amusements, to keep up the grind of practice which is the only road that leads to musical heights. They earned this trip by faithful performance of a task, that is even now so early in their lives, becoming less humdrum.

Some schools become known far and wide for athletic achievements, others make notable though less known records in scholastic lines; but Addison High seems well on the road to a place in the sun through its musical department. Making Addison a music center is a target well worth shooting at; may the school go on with this good work.

Walter Goff Board Chairman For Six Years

as a partner in the firm of "Husted and Goff" for a period of nearly three decades.

Mr. Goff first came into political prominenece in 1911, when he was elected to his initial term as supervisor of Addison. This office he has held continuously ever since. During this time, twenty-two years, which is the longest period of continuous service credited to any member of the present county board, Mr. Goff has served at some time on practically every committee. Important among these are the Good Roads Committee and the county officials highway committee, also the County Buildings Committee of which he was chairman for several years. For the past six years he has been chairman of the Board. Previous to Mr. Goff's incumbency, it has always been customary for a supervisor to hold the chairmanship for a single term—or two years—only. The departure from precedent in electing Mr. Goff to the Board chairmanship for two additional terms is a forceful expression of the confidence which his fellow-members repose in his long experience, fidelity to duty and energetic leadership.

The appointment of the Economy Committee and the consequent adoption of this committee's report, calling for a saving of $165,000 in county expenses for the year, has been perhaps the outstanding achievement of Mr. Goff's occupancy of the Board chairmanship. Early in 1932, with the depression becoming more and more acute, the need for a lowered budget was becoming rapidly apparent. Public opinion had swung around and now focused its demands upon a lowered tax rate, rather than upon more elaborate buildings and public service projects of the boom era. Resolutions were drafted by the County Grange and by various citizen groups, calling for a lessening of the tax burden.

Taking cognizance of these requests, Mr. Goff, in his capacity as chairman of the Board, recommended the appointment of the so-called "Economy Committee" to study and suggest all possible savings which might be effected in the county government. He further recommended that three outstanding citizens of the county, namely, Judge W. W. Clark of Wayland; E. Stewart Underhill of Corning, chairman of the Democratic county committee; and Daniel Comstock of Hartsville, a prominent Grange member, be named to membership on the special committee. Board members to hold places in its membership were: Roy Herrington of Woodhull, chairman of the Good Roads Committee; Benjamin Towner of Hornellsville, chairman of the committee on appropriations; John McIntyre, Democratic supervisor from Wayne and a member of the county officials committee; and Mr. Goff, serving ex-officio.

The special committee as suggested by Mr. Goff was promptly accepted by the Board itself. At the beginning of its efforts to work for economy and efficiency, Mr. Goff requested that personal and political considerations of every kind be laid aside and that the members act solely in the interest of the county and the taxpayers. After a thorough study, the Economy Committee rendered a detailed report, which outlined a possible saving of $165,000 in county expenses. This report was promptly adopted without a change by a strongly Republican Board and stands as a refutation to any possible charge that the Board was actuated in any way by political motives in passing upon the question of public expenditures.

That the citizens of Addison have looked with satisfaction upon the good roads program of the town may well be judged from their action in returning Mr. Goff year after year to the supervisor's post. During his stewardship, the roads of the township have undergone a steady and consistent improvement and proper maintenance has been a source of pride not only to the supervisor but to the great majority of local fellow citizens. During the current year the Curtis Hollow road has been graded and a stone base laid. Four-fifths of a mile on the Addison end of the Burr Hollow road has been improved. In addition to these, many prominent town improvements have been made which gave a large amount of employment to local men. Included among these latter projects were the improvements on the Hardscrabble road, also the road passing the E. C. Smith farm. It is expected that a large amount of work will yet be done this year on the so-called Mose road. The furtherance of road projects, especially at this time, is a source of especial gratification to Mr. Goff who has always had a deep sympathy for the laboring man and has been anxious at all times to encourage projects which are in the public interest and which also afford opportunities for local labor.

Despite these many improvements, the financial condition of the town is excellent, there being no outstanding indebtedness.

Mr. Goff was married in 1895 to Miss Minnie Walters of Howard. They have one daughter, Mrs. Alice Goff Salerno, of Geneva.

Mr. Goff is a member of the Addison Lodge of Odd Fellows and the First Presbyterian Church of Addison.

His long experience in the supervisor's office has given him uncommon prestige, both in county circles and among state officials at Albany. The acquaintances he has formed and the valuable experience he has gained during his long service on the board are looked upon by the great majority of his fellow citizens as valuable assets to the town.

FLIGHTS FROM THE BIRDHOUSE

By Rev. J. V. AXTELL

MIGRANTS

However one may be drawn to the wilder country to the north of us, or however one may think of the more abundance of game in the great forests, one should not think of being less fortunate regarding bird life. Probably there is a larger variety of birds in Steuben County bordering Pennsylvania, than is to be found in St. Lawrence or Clinton Counties bordering on Canada. For many birds Southern and Central New York is the most northern limit of vernal migration and some of the varieties that nest North also nest here. Again there are birds that belong more to the open spaces than to the forests. One is surprised to find so few birds in the deep woods: The wood pewee, the winter wren, certain of the warblers, white throated sparrow, olive-sided flycatcher family; birds that can fly well in brush and thicket may be found in the woods, but for the most part, birds like space to fly in and as John Burroughs points out they learn that where men are there is a certain degree of protection against birds of prey such as hawks and owls. Then we benefit from the presence of northern birds for which Southern New York is the limit of their migration; such birds as the horned lark and the snow-flakes which may be seen in roads and seedy pastures during the winter months.

So if we desire to know birds we have a better chance to know more varieties here in Southern New York than in the North.

It is very much easier to identify birds during the spring migration than it is in the fall. The birds come back from their sojourn all dressed up in the suits they wear when they go courting. They come with a dash and flourish and snatches of song that readily reveal them. In the fall they are subdued, rarely do they sing, and their plumage has faded. The spirit of travel obsesses them; they no longer belong to us. They must soon be on their way. So in the autumn you will have to look more sharply to be sure of your birds. The male's coat has dulled with the season's advance to resumble the female; the young males have not yet developed color; they may all look like the female. I believe it was Dr. Holmes who said, "The various inherited instincts ripen in succession. You may be nine-tenths paternal at one period in your life, and nine tenths maternal at another." In the bird world the whole family revert to the maternal tendencies during the autumn migration. Observe closely or you may not notice some familiar bird friend.

An example of this difficulty came to my attention this fall. A friend and neighbor of mine called me over the telephone to tell me of some strange birds that were in his evergreen trees. I went and had a good look at them, but was puzzled for some time. Finally I identified them as pine warblers. I went to get another look at them in an hour but they had gone and the trees seemed vacant like the feel of a closed house. My friend told me that they were in the trees for a small portion of the day.

Likewise I came nearly missing a large flock of purple finches that came through last week and stopped to feed on the seeds about the garden. They seemed as dull in color as the English sparrows and so I did not take any special notice of them until they were frightened and then by their little plaintive flight song and aerial scallops so like the gold finch they made themselves known.

Wild fruits and nuts have been very scarce this season and undoubtedly birds will have to leave earlier than usual being driven by hunger. News comes to me that the squirrels in the New England woods are leaving for the open fields in flocks because of the lack of nuts for food. The wild cherries were a total failure in the Adirondacks this year, there were some black cherries, very few raspberries and blue berries. For the first time I can remember the birds were eating the fruit of the mountain holly.

About three years ago the spring migration season brought me a rare treat. Mr. Willson, the principal of the high school told me he had seen an evening grosbeak. As I had never seen one I took a special interest in his claim. Looking up their life history I found they nest in the Northwest and winter eastward in about the latitude of Minnesota and rarely more easterly. Professor Willson's story made me very anxious to see this rare visitor and one morning my desire was gratified. My wife called me to look out of the study window at some strange looking birds. There, sure enough, were six of these beautiful finches. They were easily identified by their bills, their resemblance in form and size to the rose-breasted grosbeaks and they were feeding upon the buds of the maples. I have never seen any since.

The changing seasons produce strange sensations upon all animal existence and sometimes men get such a case of wonderlust that they become habitual migrants. Some are globe-trotters. Some have their summer homes in the North and winter homes in the South and some are just plain tramps.

I once read a beautiful poem about bird migration. Part of each verse was a question put by a man and the last part was the answer of the bird. The second verse was:

"Ye birds that plume your airy flight
To lands beneath a torrid sky,
Where fall no chilling winter's blight,
And flowers bloom of richest dye;
As then you mount on downy wing,
Know ye no doubt nor haunting fear,
As then your parting song you sing,
Sweet melody of hope and cheer?
Ah no! we wing our southward way
With heart unstirred by tho't of care,
For we this mighty law obey
And change the gloom for skies more fair."

Sweeping Changes Would Come With Control of the Assembly

Albany, Oct. 31 — The issue of Tammany control of the state seems to have superseded all others in the Assembly campaign outside of New York City. At first there was a disposition in some quarters to deny that Tammany would dominate a Democratic Assembly. But that attitude has pretty well disappeared. The fact that the Democratic Senate is purely a Tammany Senate, that Tammany has dominated the Democratic representation in the Legislature for a generation, that state-wide candidates on the Democratic ticket would stand no chance without the Tammany vote, and that up-state legislators even violate promises openly made to their constituents on order of Tammany—these and several other things are gradually taking out of the picture the argument that a Democratic majority in the Assembly would not be a Tammany majority. This charge has gone so far that a Democratic candidate for Assembly in the very center of the state actually argued in a recent speech that Tammany is not a political organization at all, but a fraternal and charitable body devoted to doing good in the world, which has been used by wicked outsiders as a scapegoat for their own sins and shortcomings. Evidently this candidate would be glad to take orders voluntarily from Tammany, just as others would be compelled to.

"What Would Tammany Do?"

Anyhow, the question whether a Democratic Assembly would be a Tammany Assembly is being pushed off the stage. Nobody thinks it worth while to deny it any more. It is succeeded by the other question whether a Tammany-controlled Legislature would be a benefit or an injury to the state. In other words, the dominant issue right now is, "What would Tammany Do?" Like all events of the future, that is hard to foretell with accuracy. Those who oppose extension up-state of the same authority that has brought the world's greatest city to its present condition maintain that the only prophecy worth while is that based on past actions and declared intentions. So they quote the words of a former eminent Governor of the state and say, "Let us look at the record." On that examination they base their declaration that if Tammany were put in control of the Assembly, in addition to the Senate, which it holds, it would, among others, do the things listed below.

Tax Up-State to Get Tammany Graft

As a recent instance, they recall that at the second special legislative session of the three held within ten months to keep New York City from bankruptcy, Tammany leaders actually proposed to impose a tax upon the whole state in order to make up for a deficit in the city funds due to extravagance and graft. Had it not been for the Republican Assembly this undoubtedly would have been done. They hold it reasonable, on this basis, to say that a Legislature fully in Tammony control would tax the whole state for the benefit of Tammany pruses and tin boxes.

More Officials, Bigger Salaries

The next record examined is that of New York City finances. Tammany has been in full control there. It jumped expenses from $273,000,000 in 1920 to $631,000,000 in 1932; in the latter year the city spent $163,000,000 more than its receipts. During the same period the city borrowed, in addition, $1,000,000,000, making its bonded debt $2,500,000,000. During the depression it made several increases in the number of jobholders and twice raised the salaries of the best paid among them—Mayor Walker's from $25,000 to $40,000. The extravagance in the New York State government has been bad enough in the past decade, but only a drop in the bucket to what Tammany perpetrated.

Legislation Wild and Reckless

At the last regular session of the Legislature a Democratic Senator introduced and a Democratic committee approved a bill which would have compelled every manufacturer in the state to scrap all his machinery and buy new every five years. Other Democratic bills would have financially wrecked the leading railroads of New York City and put the short line roads of the state out of business. Democratic members tried to have created a score or more of committees to "investigate" about everything under the Sun, including "technocracy". If they had gone through they would have given these committees close to a million dollars of the taxpayers' money to spend in useless junkets. Nearly two-score such measures were introduced. With a Democratic Assembly many if not all of them would have gone through.

Would Count Non-Citizens

A Democratic Legislature, with the aid of Tammany votes on a constitutional amendment, would put through the plan so often advocated, whereby New York's million or more non-citizens would be counted in figuring population for Senatorial and Assembly districts. Non-citizens, of course, cannot vote, and they are not now counted. Such a change would increase the number of legislaturs from Tammany territory and decrease the number up-state, as New York contains fully three-fourths of the non-citizens of the state.

To Cut Down Rural Vote

The present Secretary of State and other Democratic leaders have repeatedly advocated a constitutional amendment making personal registration compulsory in the rural districts and villages, thus compelling the farmer living miles from his polling place to make two trips, one to register and another to vote. While necessary in the cities, where "floaters" abound, personal registration is not needed in the country, where practically every voter is known to some member of the board. The sole result of such a change would be to cut down the rural Republican vote.

Gerrymander the State

With Democratic control of the Assembly Tammany would undoubtedly remake the Congressional, Senatorial and Assembly districts of the state. Last April the Senate passed a bill rivaling any jigsaw puzzle which laid out Congressional districts varying in population from 209,000 to 424,000. With the Senate and Assembly districts rearranged in this unfair manner it would be impossible for many years for the Republicans to again secure control of either branch. This probably ranks first in importance in the minds of the Tammany leaders among the things they would do if they were in control.

Only a Part of the Program

This is held to be only part of the program which would be carried out with a Tammany Assembly, judging by what its leaders have tried to do and announced their intention of doing. Other plans in their program, briefly stated, include the wiping out of county lines and the abolition of home rule and rural elective offices, with everything run from Albany; placing control of the ballot in the hands of a Superintendent of Elections at Albany, who would appoint local deputies, thus permitting the extension throughout the state of Tammany election methods as they now prevail in New York City and Albany; a plan making it possible for Tammany to amend the Constitution in spite of up-state— such a bill was introduced last session and passed in the Senate, getting every Democratic vote; the multiplication of job-holders in the Capitol at Albany along the lines by which the Democratic senate of 51 members spent $35,000 for personal service in the July session, while the Republican Assembly of 150 members spent only $25,000; extension through the state of the system prevailing in New York City, under which every business, legal or illegal, must pay tribute to Tammany or its minions—a policy which has pumped dry the world's wealthiest city and now looks hungrily toward new fields in the Nation's wealthiest state.

This, it is admitted, is a formidable program, and one to cause all citizens to take sharp notice, regardless of their political allegiance. Yet, those who set it forth are able to produce records to substantiate it.

Should Vote on Bond Issue

Unless they are of particular interest voters very often pay no attention to propositions and amendments submitted for their decision at the polls. This is a matter for regret, as very often they are of great importance. There is the case this year with the proposal for a bond issue, which will be listed on ballots and voting machines as "Proposition No. 1" It authorizes the state to issue $60,000,000 in bonds, the proceeds to be used for unemployment relief. Should it not pass, that service would be greatly crippled, as the resources already provided are about at an end. Practically all of the $60,000,000 would be returned to the counties, towns, cities and villages as the State's share of relief, which will be larger than in the past.

County Att. Drake Writes Enlightening Statement of Steuben County Government- Traces Unit From Days of the Romans

Recently the Democratic party in Steuben held a meeting at which the Republican Board of Supervisors was charged with lack of economy. The following article written by County Attorney James S. Drake, Jr., tells many of the moves that were made by the supervisors to cut the expenses of county government, and how a number of the efforts through state legislation to cut salaries and otherwise reduce expenses were frustrated by the Democratic Senate or vetoed by Governor Lehman.

This article carefully traces the development of county government back through hundreds of years to the days of the Romans. It shows that instead of being an antique, outworn piece of government machinery, it is instead the one self-governing unit of the people. Any open-minded person cannot but realize that taking away from the people in the counties the right to elect their own political body, the Board of Supervisors, and substituting a commission from Albany, would be a blow at the liberty of the people.

The very liberties man has struggled for from the days of despotic kings, are threatened by these sugar-coated gestures from Tammany Hall. Steuben county voters should read this article carefully, before deciding the exorbitant statements made in the Democratic party meeting at Bath were based on anything except propaganda meant to mislead the public.

I remember well that last year the board of supervisors had in mind four essential points when it passed a resolution naming a committee consisting of citizens and supervisors to study ways and means of reducing the County budget; (1) To name outstanding men, whose keen judgment would be free of prejudice and bias, and whose sense of responsibility would most likely accomplish the best results; (2) To have such men appreciate the fact that the board of supervisors have limited discretionary powers and recommend accordingly so as to ask no public officer to violate his oath to obey the law; (3) To have the man in the city, in the village and the farmer represented, and to have the representation come from the various sections of the County; and (4) To have it non-partisan for the common good of all the people in the County without the opportunity of partisanship to credit or discredit to the detriment of the people.

There are times when the common good is paramount to party issues and promises. There are times when all should fall in line and work for that common good in a willing spirit. The Board of Supervisors certainly felt that this occasion was one of those times and they certainly endeavored to have the best men they could get to represent the interests of the people. To me, it was a commendable, broad-minded and unselfish act. At least a great many thought it was a time for common action. The purpose was accomplished at least in so far as partisan rejection was concerned. At no time did any group of people desire any change on party lines. Those who desired changes represented people of both major parties. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, not its appearance.

Before stating the results of the committees' recommendations on proposed legislation to remedy at least some faults, let us pause here and turn back the pages of history and find out how the county came into existence and its purposes. Before we open the first page, let us remember that merely saying the County set-up of Government is old and antiquated answers nothing. One might as well argue the Christian Church should be abolished because it is old. In fact, as we turn over the pages we will see that many of the ideas suggested "as new" are in fact very old and even older than the Board of Supervisors itself.

In early England, earls and counts were given jurisdiction over a territory which included many parishes (towns). It first these districts were known as earldoms, shires and counties, but gradually by custom, the common name applied was the county. Twice a year the earl or count called together the land owners of the county and at a public meeting, called the "shire-moot", they passed on various governmental matters. Among these were; (1) Providing aid to the sheriff in preserving peace; (2) The imposition and collection of taxes for the King and for local purposes; (3) The training of young men in the militia and furnishing of troops to the King; (4) The investigation of crime as a grand jury and trial of the offender; (5) The determination of civil litigation between its residents; and (6) The laying down of policies for the towns to follow, not only in governmental matters, but in the promotion of agriculture and finding markets. They enacted local ordinances on health and morals. The King demanded taxes and troops, but all matters not related to the King were left entirely to the local county. We are told it was a "noble body" of men with an earl or count as its leader. With the local power and discretion, we are told that there was great competition between the counties as to the accomplishments of each, depending upon the ability and agressiveness of the earl or count. Later towns were allowed to send delegates to the "shire-moot" even though not landowners, and so we had welded together in a unit the majority thought of smaller governmental units for the common good of a given territory. The earl or count was made responsible to the King for the proper function of his county government, so the county president idea is not so new after all.

Before we turn over any more pages of our history, let us bear in mind that the taking away of local self government on all matters except strictly national or state, destroys the incentive to think out problems and better conditions. I mention that because it is the history of government and the history of county government.

Let us proceed. The county until the reign of Edward First was a noble institution. In his reign the sheriff took over practically all the duties and we are told that county government became but a formal governmental figurehead. The sheriff abused the power vested in him; the constable idea, adopted from France, was inaugurated to stop the abuse, and the two offices became so bad that in the reign of Edward Third, the justice court (as it is known today) was created to supplant the legislative and judicial powers of the county, and left the sheriff and constable as peace officers. During this time, however, the idea of local self-government still remained in the minds of the people. Earls and counts, who were friendly with the King, obtained special franchises to combine towns into borroughs. Under express grant these boroughs had the same local self-government as possessed before by the county. Boroughs even had representation in Parliament, but the counties under unfriendly earls and counts, continued to be "counties" with little or no local power.

Then as the years passed, religion began to plan an important part not only in the private lives of the people, but in government. As the dissension grew, boroughs lost their franchise or charter and again local self-government was eliminated. Witchcraft became a prevalent belief; King James tried to do all the thinking of the people and tried to enforce his ideas; and as a result, America was settled. During the Colonial period, the county and borough in England was but a "mere agency for the central authority."

Before coming to America, let us continue the county government in England. According to McQuillan on Municipal Corporation (Vol. 1, Sec. 72), counties and county boroughs still exist, each similar to the other. The county is governed by a county council consisting of persons elected from wards for three years. They elect a chairman from their number, who presides at all sessions. With the exception of strictly national affairs, they legislate on county property, highways, bridges, public health, education, sanitation, foods, dogs, diseases of animals, nuisances, weights and measures, river pullution, hospitals, asylums and industrial schools. It is said that on all social or public functions, the Lord-Lieutenant (honorary only) acts for the chairman.

Before coming to America, let us read a chapter of Greek and Roman history. Writers seem to agree that Greece excelled other nations during that period when wards of the cities and rural country were given self-government, and when as it was expressed, "the contest of mind against mind inspired individualism even in government and local pride meant state pride" (Webster's Speech in Congress on January 19, 1824) (The American Commonwealth by James Bryce, pages 267-268) McQuillan on Municipal Corporations, Sec. 22). Writers seem to agree that the glory of the Roman Empire was during the time it allowed local self government in its provinces and that it started to decay when Rome set up the commission form of government for better carrying out of centralized power (started by Hanibal). The commission form of government is as old, then, as the Roman Empire, and, although its use in this country is comparatively new, it has been in use in continental Europe for years. (See Handbook on Municipal Corporations by Charles M. Fassett, page 37) (The Roman and British Empires by James Bryce, page 81) (Reid on Municipalities of the Roman Empire, page 467) (McQuillan on Municipal Corporations, Sections 31 and 353).

When the early settlers of this country learned of the Iroquois Confederation, they found that the predominating factor which held together those tribes, was the self-government on local affairs. They had already been taught the principles of the tribal family government as recognized in the Twelve Tables, as well as knowing their own history when towns, counties and boroughs were noble institutions, and not mere agents of the central authority.

The New England States, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey created the town first and the county afterwards, and the town was the unit of self government while the county was but a political sub-division to carry out state functions with little local control. The reverse was the rule in the Southern states. And accordingly, as the settlers moved west, they carried with them the respective importance of local government in the town or county as the case might be.

Many western states adopted the name "commissioner" for what we term the "supervisor", but the idea of the early shire-moot is still carried out. The commissioners are elected not on a population basis, but either from each town or from a supervisory district, which is a combination of towns. In other words, the commissioner represents a territory, which is a part of the county. Usually the legislature fixes the district, but in some states the board of commissioners are allowed to fix the district, "provided they divide the county into fair proportions so as to represent divergent interests." (See 15 Corpus Juris page 415). Of course many of the western states are divided into squares, so that supervisory districts are not so difficult to fix on a fair proportion of territory.

My impression is that in the study of county government, there are two matters to be considered; (1) the granting of more local self-government on matters which are not strictly national or state; and (2) the granting of more freedom in the set-up of the government to administer the powers.

Cities and villages have long possessed local self-government and towns now have under the new Town Law. Many states have granted local government to counties. California has a law similar to our City Home Rule Law. The legislature of that state lays down certain duties it expects to be performed, such as collection of taxes, care of highways, safe-keeping of criminals and care of the unfortunate and poor. With certain standards to go by, the county sets up its own machinery and on local affairs it is empowered to exercise discretion. The right of removal by proceedings and the ballot box is preserved.

To me local self-government creates an incentive to go further than just considering government a business, and allows a governing board to promote general welfare toward the end of producing good, energetic and useful lives, by drawing government closer to the citizen and thereby instilling a spirit of public confidence, cooperation and local pride in its achievements. It would eliminate many local acts in the legislature passed to meet the whim of a group and often a handicap on the majority; and it would allow each county to meet its own conditions and problems on its own standard and not on a standard, which might fit some other county.

The days of the horse and carriage are over, and autos have replaced them. In the matter of traveling, it now takes hours when before days. Machinery has replaced the pick and shovel on highway work. Government should go along with progress, not ahead of it, but abreast of it, and with the right to set up a county's own machinery to perform governmental duties, it can be kept abreast. There will be times when neglect of duties will appear on the scene, but the ballot box is still with us, and personally I have faith in the ability of the local people to handle the problem. If the size of the board of supervisors must be reduced to accomplish a portion of this result, it should remain a group representing territory and not population, and it should have powers of local self-government.

In 1930 the Governor and Legislature appointed a commission for revision of the Tax Laws. This commission later took over the study of county government. This commission recognized that more local control should be granted to counties, because the Legislature in passing a general law applicable to one county does not often fit well in another. The trouble with accomplishing much in this particular was said to be Constitutional limitations on the powers of the Legislature. The commission also pointed out the need of an executive head separate from the board of supervisors itself. In 1933 it recommended a constitutional amendment for complete reorganization of the county and a law allowing counties to have either a county president to be elected by the people for four years or the appointment of a county executive by the board to serve at their pleasure. A bill was introduced to accomplish this by Senator Mastick, a Republican, but it was not reported out of the Senate. Assemblyman Cuvilier, a Democrat, introduced a bill calling for the appointment of a new commission to study county government, but it was not reported out of the Assembly committee.

The action taken on proposed amendments to the law as recommended by the economy committee and the board of supervisors was as follows:

(1) Lien on real property of persons receiving old age security. Under the Public Welfare Law the County Commissioner is empowered to take a deed or mortgage from the person receiving relief in the form of Old Age Security and it was recommended that the person be allowed to make a voluntary lien upon his property in the form similar to that of a mechanics lien and thereby eliminate the cost of foreclosure of a mortgage. Assemblyman Otto introduced a bill setting up a procedure to be followed (Printed No. 8) in the Assembly, and Assemblyman Bernhardt introduced a similar bill (Printed No. 236) and Senator Warner introduced the bill in the Senate (Printed No. 306). The Otto bill was reported out of the Committee in the Assembly on February 8th, and the Warner bill out of the Senate Committee on February 16th, but it was not passed by either house and did not become a law.

(2) Hospital Care Under the Public Welfare Law hospitalization may be authorized as a public charge when the person is unable to pay even though such person may be "otherwise able to maintain himself" and it was proposed to amend the law to provide that hospitalization be authorized only in cases where the person was in need of relief. Assemblyman Messer introduced a bill in the Assembly (Printed 343) and Senator Warner in the Senate (Printed No. 302) but neither bill was reported out of the Judiciary Committees of the Assembly and Senate, and hence did not become a law.

(3) Cemeteries. Under the New Town Law (Effective January 1st, 1934) the provision regarding cemeteries did not expressly provide that the town superintendent should remove the grass and weeds from abandoned cemeteries. It was proposed to make this clear and distinct that the duty only applied to a strictly abandoned cemetery. Assemblyman Messer introduced a bill in the Assembly on February 8, and Senator Warner's bill passed the Senate on April 6th. The bill was signed by the Governor on May 2nd, and became Chapter 661 of the Laws of 1933.

(4) Closing Jails. Under the Correction Law the Commissioner of Correction is given power to close a jail without an opportunity to be heard in the Supreme Court and the remedy is review of such order by certiorari. Although as a matter of practice, the Commission of Correction grants an opportunity to be heard before such order, it was recommended that such opportunity be made a matter of right. Assemblyman Messer introduced a bill in the Assembly (Printed No. 37) and Senator Warner in the Senate (Printed No. 304). The bill passed the Assembly on February 7th, but was not reported out of the Senate Penal Institution Committee and hence did not become a law.

(5). Salaries of County Officers. The Committee and Board of Supervisors recommended a special act pertaining to Steuben County allowing the Board of Supervisors to fix salaries of all County Officers. Assemblyman Messer introduced a bill in the Assembly (Printed No. 444) and Senator Warner in the Senate (Printed No. 408). The bill passed the Assembly on February 15th, and the Senate on April 8th. On April 10th the bill was sent to the Governor and on April 26th, he vetoed it.

(6). Mileage of Constables and Deputy Sheriffs in Serving Criminal Process. Under the code of Criminal Procedure police officers were entitled to 15c per mile in making arrests or transporting prisoners and it was recommended that this allowance be reduced to 6c per mile. Assemblyman Otto introduced a bill in the Assembly and Senator Warner in the Senate and upon recommendation of the Codes Committee the amount was fixed at 8c. (Printed No. 47-303 and 805). The bill passed the Assembly on February 13th and the Senate on April 8th and on May 10th was signed by the Governor, becoming Chapter 590 of the Laws of 1933 in effect September 1st, 1933.

(7). Primary Elections. It was recommended that the Legislature make a study of the primary law with the idea of reducing the cost where possible. Three bills were introduced providing that there be no primary election where there was no contest (Assemblyman Moffatt, Printed 1781) (Assemblyman Esmond, Printed No. 119) (Senator Cilano, Printed No. 4). Assemblyman's Moffatt's bill passed the Assembly on March 7th, but was not reported out of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and hence did not become a law.

(8). Tax Conferences. It was recommended that the Tax Law be amended eliminating the tax conference in Albany every two years and providing for the state officials to meet locally with assessors. Two sets of bills were introduced (Assemblyman Messer, Printed No. 784) (Senator Warner, Printed No. 596) (Assemblyman Pratt, Printed No. 1887) (Senator Buckley, Printed No. 1524). The Pratt-Buckley bill passed the Assembly on March 14th, and the Senate on March 31st, and on April 12th was signed by the Governor, becoming Chapter 185 of the Laws of 1933.

(9). Fee for Filing Note of Issue. In order to help pay court costs, it was recommended that a fee be charged in all actions in Supreme or County Court in Steuben County upon the filing of a note of issue in the County Clerk's Office. Assemblyman Otto introduced a bill in the Assembly (Printed No. 551 and 1028) which passed the Assembly on February 20th. Senator Warner's bill in the Senate (Printed No. 422) was not reported out of the Senate Code Committee and hence did not become a law.

(10). Use of gas tax and motor vehicle fees to pay principal and interest on bonded indebtedness for the share of the cost of constructing state roads. Prior to 1933 the bonded indebtedness was a charge on the real estate of the county, with no right to use gas tax moneys or motor vehicle fees except for constructing and maintenance of county roads. Assemblyman Drumstrom introduced a bill in the Assembly to provide for the use of these moneys for bonded indebtedness of county roads (Printed No. 10,765). Senator Kirkland introduced a companion bill in the Senate (Printed No. 948 and 10,462. Assemblyman Otto introduced a similar bill in the Assembly (Printed No. 408-798-1123-1432) and Senator Lord in the Senate (Printed No. 435 and 615). The Otto bill passed the Assembly on February 23rd, but the Senate bill was not reported out of the Senate Internal Affairs Committee, and hence did not become a law. However, Assemblyman Devany introduced a bill in the Assembly allowing the use of the money for paying of principal and interest on bonded indebtedness for state highways and Senator Twomey introduced a companion bill in the Senate (Printed No. 1405 and 1035). The bill passed the Assembly on March 1st, and the Senate on April 3rd, and was signed by the Governor on April 18th, becoming Chapter 225 of the Laws of 1933.

ASSEMBLY

Friday's assembly consisted of an interesting talk by Mr. Willson. When he took the floor, he congratulated the orchestra on their successful trip to Richburg and Bolivar the preceding day.

He said that he was very much pleased to see the High School News in the Addison Advertiser. "It is what I have been wanting for years, fifty or seventy-five, I believe it is", he added, the last with a touch of humor. When he asked who read the High School News, most of the students raised their hands. He asked how many students really knew what is going on in the world today? How many of them read the newspapers? He remarked that history is being made every day, history we can not find in books. He inquired how many knew the meaning of the words or phrases that are used today in the newspapers and magazines, such as: Inflation, Deflation, Managed Currecucy, the New Deal, the Gold Standard and Hitler? Who knew what nation had just withdrawn from the League of Nations. How long did our country belong or did it ever belong? He mentioned the following papers and magazines which are in our Library for the purpose of keeping us intelligently informed of the world about us: The New York Times, Current History, Literary Digest, Forum, Time, The Nation and several others.

We think that Mr. Willson gave us much food for thought in his talk. He has aroused our interest. We shall make the most of our opportunities.

GOOD NEWS

On Friday, November 28th, the Seniors sponsored a Halloween dance in the school auditorium. At 8:30 the dance was well under way. Although there was no orchestra, the combined radio and victrola rendered good dance music. In contrast to the many other dances which the school held in the past year at which a great many of the students lacked the courage to enter into the fray and have a good time, it seemed evident last Friday night, in spite of the fact that a larger number attended, that there was still a larger number than usual on the dance floor all the time. At ten o'clock refreshments consisting of grape juice and doughnuts were served.

Several members of the faculty including Mr. Willson, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill, Miss Florence Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Phelps, Mr. Wendell Hewson, Miss Mary Montgomery, Miss Velma Harbeck and Miss Elizabeth Conley joined with the students and had an equally enjoyable time.

This dance was more or less of an experiment to determine whether or not the student body would continue to sponsor Friday night dances. Because of the wholesomely fine time enjoyed by all, we, as students, feel certain that more dances are to be held in the near future.

BOLIVAR-RICHBURG TRIP

Last Thursday, October 26, the Addison High School Orchestra, numbering thirty-four, left Addison for an all day trip to Richburg and Bolivar. A morning concert was given at the Richburg Central School at 11:00 A. M., where an assembly of three hundred enjoyed music by the orchestra. A varied program was presented including solos by Violinist David Stiker, Mellophonist, Betty Perry and a Brass Quintet consisting of Dean Cole, Wilbor Hannahs and William Wilson, Trumpetists, and Maynard Allen and Frances Colburn, Trombonists. The entire program was excellently presented with the aforementioned solos receiving much, well deserved applause.

After playing at Richburg, the orchestra journeyed to the Bolivar School. Here they enjoyed a fine luncheon served in the cafeteria of the school. At 1:00 P. M. before an audience of nine hundred in the large Bolivar auditorium, the Addison students offered a similar concert to that one presented at Richburg. Again just as successful a program was given and that it was well-received was attested to by the continuous applause of the Bolivar pupils.

An interesting "find" was unearthed in Mr. Burt's orchestra in the form of a tuba player, William Colburn.

As Mr. F. Arden Burt, Addison's music director, said at Bolivar, the object of this trip was not to start a competitive series of musical programs between the schools but increase the feeling of fellowship and good spirit which should prevail among all schools. It is his hope that a series of trips such as this will not only provide pleasure for those able to go but will also offer entertainment of the highest calibre to the privileged ones who hear the music. While at Richburg, Mr. Burt made final arrangements with Mr. Austin, Richburg's music director, for a return trip here of the Richburg Orchestra and Girls' Glee Club some time in December. Mr. Burt also intends to bring the Bolivar Band and Boys' Glee Club to Addison in the near future. It is hoped that local music-lovers will avail themselves of these opportunities to see and hear what other high schools are doing in their music departments.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

A week ago the boys were called to the courts for their first basketball practice of the season. This week, Miss Harbeck, the girls' coach, will issue the same call to Addison's girls. The Freshmen and Sophomore girls will meet Tuesday night, and the Juniors and Seniors will report Thursday night for their first practice. The entire group is to start real work next week. They will practice twice a week until the opening of the season. The first game will be held in the latter part of November.

This year the team is hoping for better material for the offense, although the defense will be as strong, if not stronger than it was last year. We regret the loss of oue of our best players, Esther Hewson, who served her school so well, and helped Addison to win many victories.

The girls are very enthusiastic, and are looking forward to a successful season. This is what our girls' team is doing for our school. But what are we doing for them? We should respond to their efforts with the best possible support. Show our school spirit a bit! They have won many victories for Addison in other years—so they will this year; but they will fight harder if they can feel that they are backed by every student in Addison High. We must attend their games and show an interest — cheer them on and give them pep! We must not think that our girls' team is not so important as the boys'. It is every bit as important, and it should have our loyal support and wholehearted cooperation. Isn't this one way to bring more honor and glory to our school?

Eighth Grade:—

Dr. Auringer gave some interesting health facts to the eighth grade after the medical examination in that room Monday, October 30. Among the suggestions made was the importance of clean teeth, finger nails and body, also the benefits of a larger fruit diet with plenty of water especially in the morning. The eighth grade is rather proud of good health and appearance, and appreciates the Doctor's suggestions.

Friday afternoon the eighth grade girls took the affirmative in a debate against the eighth grade boys on the question, "Was the United States Justified in Entering the Spanish-American War?" The debators pretended they were living in that day. According to Judges Dean Cole, Curtis Taylor and Martha Ginnane, the United States was not justified to enter the Spanish-American War. The students showed much interest in spite of personal opinions and enjoyed the argument.

Speaker Traces Development of Electric Companies in Addison

Electricity First Used Here in Park, Winton & True Factory—F. H. Wheaton Formed First Addison Electric Light Company—N. Y. C. Electric Corp. Bought Out Local Plant in 1924.

R. S. Whitehill, gave the Advertising Club men a resume of the development of electricity in the village of Addison, in a talk at the noon luncheon yesterday. Mr. Whitehill is employed by the New York Central Electric Corporation, present distributors of current to this village.

The speaker stated that the old manufacturing company, Park, Winton and True, produced the first electricity in Addison, their plant being installed about 1892 for use in their own factory only. Just after Park, Winton and True started using electric lights, a company was formed by Charles A. Brewster, his brother, the late Bert Brewster and the late William Farnham, for the purpose of producing commercial electricity. What was called the "brush" system of wiring was used, a separate wire having to be strung to each consumer. Because of the excessive cost of stringing wires to each individual user this company did not attempt to serve houses, but rather depended on the stores and hotels which were within easier reach of the plant located in the present Hawkins & Hill building. Eventually the partnership was dissolved, but owing to a fortunate advance in the price of wire the plant was dismantled and sold for a profit.

Mr. Whitehall stated that the late Josiah Hoffman operated a small electric plant for a short time in the nineties, he being succeeded by the late F. H. Wheaton who formed the Addison Electric Light Company. This plant was located where the Addison water pumping system now stands, being connected with Mr. Wheaton's large sawmill. About 1900 a big fire swept the sawmill and electric plant out of existence, and for the next two years the village had no electricity. In 1902 J. S. Hubbs of Hammondsport purchased the franchise and equipped an electric plant on West Front Street, producing current with a large gas engine burning natural gas. In November, 1917 that plant was purchased by Melvin G. Hubbs, who installed a set of steam boilers in 1921. In 1924 the New York Central Electric Corporation bought out Mr. Hubbs' company, closing down the local plant and bringing current from Corning. The line has since been extended through Rathbone and Cameron Mills to Cameron.

There were 36 members and guests at the luncheon which was served by the ladies of the Episcopal Church.

A t the business meeting Charles L. Crane reported for the executive committee on some industrial correspondence. The committee was empowered to act for the club in bringing the interested party to Addison, if they decided to do so.

Dr. Bean Elected President of Addison Young Republican Club

Enthusiastic Organization Meeting Held Wednesday Evening—Reuben Oldfield Speaker—Walter Goff Answers His Opponents.

Dr. Stuart H. Bean was named president of the Addison Young Republicans' Club at an organization meeting held in the city hall last night. Other officers were electer as follows: vice-president, Lewis Manley; secretary, Mrs. Lester Andrews; treasurer, Robert Apgar; advisory committees, James Erwin, Elmer Bovee, Lester Andrews.

The meeting was called to order about 8:30 o'clock by Lester Andrews acting as temporary chairman. He introduced Reuben B. Oldfield, Joseph L. Bailey, and Grattan Barber, all of Bath, each of whom spoke upon the purpose of the Young Republicans Club.

Walter Goff, Republican candidate for supervisor of Addison township was introduced. Responding, he praised the purpose of the Young Republicans movement, also the efforts of its leaders to whip it into a strong, verile organization.

Reverting to the local township election, Mr. Goff seized upon the opportunity to emphatically deny pervalent reports that he was financially interested in the ownership of certain trucks engaged in county highway construction or that he sought another term because of his desire to personally benefit from provisions of the pension law.

Mr. Goff said in part, "My apponent is my neighbor. Elmer Hawkins is a friend of mine, and he is a highly respected citizen of the town. I would not say a word against him and I know that he would not say a word against me.

"* * *It has been said, in this campaign, however, that I am interested in several trucks. This is not so. Neither is it true that I am seeking another term in order to qualify for a pension. I wish to explain that I am eligible for the state retirement fund. This does not cost the taxpayers a cent. I have paid about $800 or $900 into this fund which is just like the teachers' retirement fund. I am at the age when I draw upon retirement anyway. I have absolutely nothing to gain from the pension by service another two years. It will pay me about $20 per month upon retirement whenever this occurs."

The price set on Wednesday for newly mined gold was $32.26 an oz. Meanwhile the President awaited hopefully for assurances from Great Britain, the Empire would react favorable to his plan for purchase of gold in foreign markets. Boosting the price of gold has brought a boom to the mining industry, as operators and workers envision higher profits for both. So far the boom is not expected to raise production above the pre-war mark.

"Republican Officials Know Your Needs" Banquet Group Is Told

end that we place in the chief executive's chair a member of our own party who will then direct our affairs as they should be directed."

Supervisor Walter M. Goff, of Addison, chairman of the Steuben County Board of Supervisors was next introduced. Mr. Goff was roundly applauded and then in turn introduced other members and candidates for the county board, who were present at the meeting, as follows: Zina C. Bowen, Avoca; Guy W. Daniels, Bath; M. M. Herrington, Cameron; Frank Aulls, Campbell; George Whiting, Canisteo; Dan Bly, Caton; Ray McMichael, Dansville; A. E. Scudder, Erwin; Dale D. Baker, Greenwood; Frank Hubbard, Hornellsville; Vin Lake, Hornell; Bert Bennett, Howard; William Newcomb, Rathbone; Guy Crane, Thurston; George Fay, Urbana; Mr. Bower, Wayland; and R. W. Herrington, Woodhull.

Surrogate Judge Wheeler was then introduced, as were also sheriff Stanley Hoagland and Welfare Commissioner E. Ray Hardenbrook. Each was greeted with applause as his name was called. Leaders of the Young Republican clubs in the various communities of the county were then called upon and as the name of each was called, the entire delegation present from the respective communities arose. The leaders who responded were John Bennett, Hornell; Leland Bryan, Corning; Roger Stewart, Canisteo; Joseph Riegelsberger, Wayland; R. D. Sick, Arkport; Howard Chamberlain, Painted Post; Mr. Cortright, Corning; and William Robinson, vice-president of the club at Bath.

Carl Wellington of Hornell, state committeeman from the second district, was called upon. He said in part, "It is the duty of the Republican party to act as a watchdog upon the party in power. The wonderful thing about our government is that we have two parties, the one to act as a check and a watchdog while the other is in power. It is very gratifying that we have such a healthy watchdog as may be judged from the attendance and enthusiasm here tonight."

George Pratt

George Pratt, the district attorney of Steuben County, was the next speaker. Mr. Pratt ridiculed many aspects of the "New Deal". He went on to say, in part "Our government in changing and it is up to us as citizens to see that the changes do not swallow us up."

At another point he said, "People are more independent now than they were. It behooves the new generation to study the newer problems of the day, and to get in there and fight for what they feel to be right. And it is up to the older generation to show them the way."

Referring to the purposes of the Young Republican clubs, the speaker stated that these were being formed to "inculcate the ideas of the Republican party and to encourage the younger generation to study and act upon the suggested changes of our government."

With reference to the two traditional parties Mr. Pratt said, "I say without fear of contradiction that the Republican party has given better government all the way through than has the Democratic party at any stage in its history.

Alluding to the Democratic gathering in Elmira some weeks ago, the district attorney said, "Why Elmira? They knew that the place to start was in Chemung County . . . The whole program was to break in upstate and gain control of the assembly". He stated that in all up-state New York, there were but 15,000 office holders, while in New York City alone, with approximately the same population as the up-state, there were 160,000. He mentioned this fact in asserting that Democratic economy claims were not to be relied upon.

Mr. Pratt urged that all Republican candidates be returned to office, citing the desirability of harmonious working conditions. Using Corning as an illustration of what might happen through antagonistic contacts of those in authority, he said, "Mr. Sebring there is running on the Democratic ticket. He is no more a Democrat than I am . . . What would happen if he should be elected? He would have Joe Kelley and one other councilman with him. All of the others would be opposed to him. As a consequence his hands would be tied . . . This is what might happen here in Steuben unless you return all Republicans to office."

Near the conclusion of his talk Mr. Pratt asserted, "The Republican party in Steuben County today is better organized than it ever has been".

C. Ray Hanson, who was prosecuting attorney in Chicago at the time of the Capone trial, was introduced. He urged that party workers to get out a large vote to insure victory.

Reuben B. Oldfield, present county clerk and former assemblyman, introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. McGinnies, as being "an upstate, upstanding man, and the one strong bulwark in holding Tammany Hall below the Bronx River.".

Mr. McGinnies

Mr. McGinnies, in his introductory remarks, commented upon the large attendance and enthusiastic spirit of the meeting. He added that reports from throughout the state indicated that similar Republican meetings were more enthusiastic and more largely attended than ever before.

Entering upon the principal theme of his discussion, he went on to say, "There is no question but that the issues which confront us this year are the most important and far-reaching that the party has had to face since its inception. One issue is whether the great state of New York is to be entirely controlled by a single political organization from the city of New York.

"I have no quarrel with the up-state Democrats. They are our neighbors. They are honest . . . and good fellows, all. . . But something entirely different is the political control of the state. The Democratic party controls New York City. By virtue of its power and policy it controls the up-state Democracy . . . . If the Democrats succeed in carrying the election this year, it is not just a question of electing an assemblyman as usual; rather, if they get control of the assembly they win control over the entire system of government—legislative as well as executive."

Mr. McGinnies stated that the first thing the Democratic party would do, if it should gain complete control over the legislative body would be to combine certain communities and reduce the representation of others in the assembly. He mentioned Steuben, St. Lawrence and Dutchess as being among the counties which would very likely lose one Assemblyman under Democratic control. The speaker also stated the Democrats, if they gained the ascendancy, also immediately would call a constitutional convention and amend the state constitution. He quoted a prominent Democratic member of the state senate as saying on the senate floor, "There is no such thing as a state Constitution any more, we are getting along on decisions of the courts."

"The Constitution has some wise restrictions", said Mr. McGinnies. "Away back in the early days it was realized that some sections might increase in population faster than others". He explained that it had provided for legislative representation upon: first, population; and secondly, assuring each community a certain amount of representation. "Under the new redistricting your county would not have its quota and a half and accordingly Steuben would lose its extra representative in the assembly", he said and continued "If our Democratic friends gain control they would redistribute the state upon a basis of population . . . they would combine the smaller communities of the state and put the extra representation into the City of New York". As a further difference between the viewpoints of the two parties upon the subject of representation, Mr. McGinnies said, "The Democrats believe in including alien residents in basing population. Our party is opposed to this".

The question is sometimes raised, the speaker remarked, as to whether the Democrats wouldn't give us just as good government as the Republicans. In answer to that he said, "There is no need of talking about corruption. This has become a by-word. The inefficiency of our opponents in the City of New York has put the greatest metropolis in the world on the verge of bankruptcy. Through tehir mismanagement of public affairs, the business interests have refused to grant them further financial aid until they put their financial affairs in order".

The speaker mentioned that city officials from New York had come to the legislature three times for financial relief and had even proposed that a general sales tax be levied upon the entire state in an effort to lessen the city's plight.

"Tammany today doesn't reach its hand into the public treasury as in the days of Tweed—there are too many checks for that—they get it by exacting tribute from every responsible business in that great city" the speaker asserted. "Everyone in some degree pays tribute . . . They have nearly exhausted their resources that way, however, and now they are anxious to reach out and tax legitimate business up-state. If this is the kind of government the people want they should vote for the Democratic candidates for assembly."

Referring to the Democratic meeting in Elmira, at which Postmaster-General Farley and others high in party councils were present. Speaker McGinnies said, "Their object was to win the assembly . . . at least they were honest about it. They advertised it openly."

With reference to Assemblyman Wilson Messer, the speaker said, "If you send this man back to Albany, he will represent Republican principles . . . One trouble of the Republican party has been that too many Republicans vote for some Democrat because he is a good fellow . . . This was one of the important considerations which placed Governor Smith in the executive chair of the state and started a line of Democratic governors which has not since been broken . . . I don't care how good as a man or as a governor a Democrat may be, he isn't as good as some Republican".

"Democrats from New York City are not sympathetic with the needs of the up-state" Speaker McGinnies went on to say. "We people upstate know your needs and your necessities and we are in sympathy with you. There is no reason why you should turn over the government to our Democratic friends", he added, in stressing the need for cohesion and unity in returning Republicans to office.

"Much has been said concerning what Democratic governors have done for the state," the speaker stated. "I wish to remind you of this — your Democratic governors could not have passed any of this legislation if it had been for the Republican assembly. We have tried to do the things that would help the state", he added. Among notable achievements brought about through mutual action of the two parties, he mentioned the taking away of the direct tax on real estate, the making of large appropriations for support of the public schools . . . retention of state aid to localities, etc. "Personally I am opposed to the cutting of state aid unless the localities themselves can reflect that aid in their own budget."

With reference to contests for supervisor Mr. McGinnies said, "The same thing applies to supervisors that applies to members of assembly. If you have a board of supervisors which is antagonistic to your other county offices, they can handicap them greatly", he said.

Reform of county government was the next subject touched upon. "Consolidation was Governor Smith's great hobby", said the speaker. "This was not very popular, however. Now they speak of reorganization and reform. I do not claim our present system is perfect . . . it is, however, the kind of town and county government our people want and need just now."

We think that we know as much about our county government as do the Democratic representatives from New York City" the speaker said, and he then added, "I haven't noted any tendency on the Democratic party to combine some of the offices in New York city. It might be a good thing to combine some town and county offices. There are, however, many considerations besides the new quetion of of economy. We must consider the comfort and convenience of our people. For instance it has been recommended that we do away with town clerks, also that all taxes be paid to the county treasurer. This would mean a great inconvenience to all people of the county except those living near the county seat . . ."

"Taken by and large, it is a question whether any of these suggested changes would work out either for economy or for the convenience of the people."

Alluding to changes in national policy, Speaker McGinnies said, "We are going out on uncharted seas. Representatives of Soviet Russia are coming over to see us. It may be that if negotiations continue, we shall have something in common with the Soviet . . . Whether we believe in it or not, we are embarking upon a new school of political economy. Heretofore, we have believed in the system of individual effort . . . Now we are taking up another system, that government is to tell us how we are to run our business, how many men we are to employ, how much we are to pay, etc.

In closing, Speaker McGinnies said, "It may not be in four years but I prophesy that in eight, the people of New York State will be turning back to the Republican party to be the tiller of the ship of state".

Judge Brown

County Judge Brown was introduced. He congratulated the Republican party that it had two energetic young leaders like Grattan Barber and Joseph L. Bailey. He then introduced other Republican county officials, including Assemblymen Austin Otto and Wilson Messer, both candidates for re-election; Fred Cornell, candidate for sheriff; and Miss Clara Smith, nominee for another term as county treasurer. Each candidate received liberal applause, that for Cornell being particularly spontaneous and prolonged.

Judge Brown cited many facts relative to county government. He mentioned that the improved roads of the county, have cost between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000 to build, but that less than $1,000,000 of indebtedness is outstanding.

"Every county official is giving the best and most efficient service that is possible to give you" the Judge concluded.

After closing remarks by Dr. E. Walter Woodbury and by Chairman Barber, the meeting adjourned.

Potato Growers Plan Large Crop

Florida and Texas Increase Spring Acreage Twenty-four Per Cent

Late potatoes in New York state may have to compete next spring with a larger than usual crop of early potatoes from the southern states, reports M. P. Rasmussen of the New York state college of agriculture.

According to October estimates from the United States department of agriculture, potato growers in Florida and the lower valley of Texas plan to increase their early potato acreage about twenty-four per cent this season. This would mean an increase in those sections from 42,100 acres in 1933 to 52,000 in 1934. A similar increase is planned by growers in California, upper Texas, South Carolina and other southern states. The crops from these areas, Professor Rasmussen points out, follow the Florida and lower Texas crops on the market.

These estimated increases in the early southern crop, he says, may affect the spring market for late potatoes in New York state and may result in a larger demand for seed potatoes from the southern states. Heavy movement of potatoes from Florida and Texas, he adds, does not ordinarily begin before March.

The 1933 acreage in Florida and the lower valley of Texas was within 100 acres of the acreage forecast in October, 1932.

in 1921 to accept appointment by Governor Miller to the vacancy created by the death of Wendell Dean, then County Treasurer. He was elected to the office for a regular term in the election that fall and continued to hold the post for the following six years.

In 1929, Mr. Aulls was again supervisor of the town of Campbell. A notable achievement of his second tenure in the supervisor's chair has been the lowering of taxes by a substantian margin during each successive year. In 1929 the tax rate of the town of Campbell was $29.84 per thousand. In 1930, it was reduced to $25.73; in 1931, the rate was $26.72; and in 1932, it came down to 23.91, an aggregate reduction for the period of $5.91 per thousand of assessed valuation.

This substantial decrease in the tax rate was effected by inducing the public utilities to accept a larger assessment and by obtaining a higher county equalization for the township. The public utility companies owning taxable property in the town were the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the New York Telephone Co., The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, the Erie Railroad and the Western Union Telegraph Company. Before revaluation these companies were assessed in the aggregate $281,940; after revaluation they were assessed at $406,490, an increase of $124,540, which reflected a corresponding decrease in the taxation imposed upon the smaller property owners of the township. A benefit of $1,000 was also received due to a state income refund; $3,680 from the county, town and highway fund, and $501 from the school tax, giving a total of $4,281 from such sources.

Mr. Aulls was married on February 21st, 1900, to Miss Mary E. Charlton of Peekskill, who died six years later. In 1909 he was married to Marguerite E. Cox of Cleveland, Ohio. Three children by his second marriage are Mrs. Lewis W. Jones of Hornell; Frank W. Aulls, a student at Elmira Business Institute; and Miss Virginia M. Aulls, a student at Campbell Central High School.

Mr. Aulls is a thirty-second degree Mason and a member of Corning Consistory. He is president of Hope Cemetery Association of Campbell and has also served as president of the Steuben County Agricultural Society, sponsor of the Bath Fair. For a period of fourteen years, he also served as vice-president of the latter organization. He is a director of the First National Bank of Bath and for twenty-six years has been a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church of Campbell.

During his service as a member of the Board of Supervisors he has been chairman of the Tuberculosis Hospital Committee, chairman of the Equalization Committee and he has also served on practically every committee on the Board. For the past four years he has been a member of the County Auditing Committee, chairman of the Jail Committee, chairman of the Insurance Committee, and chairman of the Salary Committee.

Other candidates on the Republican ticket for various posts in the local government are as follows:

Town lerk, Mrs. Edith Lewis; superintendent of highways, Jesse Shufelt; assessors, Claude Wilson and John Frederick; justices of the peace, Uri Balcom, Charles Burlingame, Leland Jack and Frank Pierce; collector Mrs. Joseph Bates.

How What and Why?

Asks About Oleo

Mrs. G. V. D., Newark, asks: How many pounds of oleomargarine are used annually in the United States? How much of this butter substitute is used in the state of New York? How does oleomargarine compare with butter in food value?

To these queries, Professor E. S. Guthrie of the dairy department replies: "According to the reports of the United States department of agriculture, 135,900,000 pounds of oleo margarine and 1,076,600,000 pounds of butter were used in the United States during the first seven months of 1933.

The department of agriculture and markets at Albany can give you the information about the use of butter substitutes in New York state.

In his book on Food Products, Dr. Henry G. Sherman makes this statement in regard to the comparative food value of butter and commercial substitutes: "It appears, however, safe to say that none of the butter substitutes approaches good butter in vitamin value and that butter, even when of poor quality, is likely to be much richer in vitamin than any other commercial form of food fat."

Feed for Calf

J. C. S., Cooperstown, writes: "I have purchased a Guernsey calf four months old. The owner was feeding this calf two quarts of whole milk a day, a corn meal gruel and a mixed wheat feed. I have some skimmilk. Could I give her more milk? What other feed do you recommend?"

Professor H. A. Hopper of the animal husbandry department replies: "If your calf is already four months old and doing well, you may gradually shift it from whole milk to skimmilk. Skimmilk is a great advantage in raising calves. You may feed skimmilk until the calf is six months of age with good results. I would begin now to change to skimmilk, and the calf can receive as much as sixteen pounds a day until toward the end of the six-months period when you will gradually taper off the milk ration and feed no more milk.

"For grain I would feed either a twelve per cent fitting ration or make up a mixture composed of 300 corn, 300 oats, 300 bran and 100 linseed oil meal. Of this mixture you may gradually increase the amount until the calf is getting about four pounds a day. It will not pay you to feed more than four pounds of grain, but rather induce the calf to eat a little more hay."

Black Walnuts

C. F. M. Writes, "Please tell me whether black walnut is a suitable nut tree for New York state?"

J. A. Cope of the forestry department replies: The black walnut is rather fastidious and exacting as to the place where it thrives. It requires a mild climate, plenty of sunshine and a rich, deep alluvial soil that is moist but well drained. It likes a "sweet" soil and is not likely to thrive in regions where chestnuts grow—or grew before the chestnut blight killed them. In general, it might be well, in New York state, to confine the planting to specimen trees along a fence row or in the yard.

Fall planting of the nuts gives satisfactory results. As soon as the nuts fall, they may be gathered for this purpose. A good-sized tree which produces large-meated nuts, and grows in the locality where the new trees are desired, should prove the most satisfactory as a source of seed. It is not necessary to remove the green husk, but one or two nuts should be cracked open to determine whether the crop has a fair proportion of good seed. Loosen up the top soil, which includes removing the sod over an area of at least a foot square, and sink the nuts to a depth of two inches with the heel and cover. By way of insurance, plant two nuts together. Space the holes at least twenty-five feet apart and do not plant under the shade of other trees. Unless squirrels or other rodents are particularly active, the seed should produce a crop of vigorous seedlings in the spring.

Girl Scout Week Ends November 4th

Girl Scout Week! What does that mean to the public? Dozens of fresh-faced girl scouts going about in official uniform. An article in the newspaper, and finally a benefit card party for which many have been asked to buy a ticket.

That is Girl Scout Week on the surface. Underneath, it means much more than this. It means that the local Girl Scout organization is trying to bring to others something of Scouting. That it is attempting to show how much Scouting is doing to build strong bodies and strong characters and thus equip girls for their places in the world.

Girl Scout Week is just one period of the year when the scouts acquire added inspiration for themselves, and seek to transmit to the public something of their desire to serve. The local Girl Scouts are ready to prove their desire to be of value to their community. They have sold poppies on Poppy Day; they have assisted in the observance of Community gala days; soon they will assume the sale of Christmas seals. But there are many more ways in which they can help — so do not hesitate to call on them for aid — the girl scouts are ready.

Girl Scout Week lasts from October 29 to November 4. But do not forget when Girl Scout Week is over that the Girl Scout Organization is building for the future by building in the present. Give the girl scouts approval and your cooperation—they ask nothing more.
